- 7) Changes to registration due to cancellation of courses

After the period for registration confirmation and change, students who have registered for classes canceled due to the lack of numbers must check the homepage for notices related to the cancellation. Affected students should register for new courses that do not conflict with other registered courses within the determined period in person.
- 8) Important Notes
 - A) Students responsible for the course registration for themselves. Passwords should not be given to others(this includes course registration done by another person), as this may lead to errors in course registration or personal information leakage. To change your password, go to Ewha homepage (Korean)→ 유레카→ 개인정보변경→ 비밀번호변경. Passwords that have been changed 30 days prior must also be changed through "Change Password".
 - B) All classes are capped, and registration will be blocked once the class cap has been reached. If the class you want has too many people, you must register for another class or for another course.
 - C) You cannot register for courses that overlap (including Chapel).
 - D) In case of Liberal Arts courses that are designated to certain majors, students must register for the class section designated to their major.
Ex.: For "Integrated Thinking and Writing", "College English", "Advanced English" and "The World & Christianity", students must register for the class section specified in the "Remarks Column" of the Comprehensive Course Schedule.
 - E) Courses that have not been registered through the internet will not be recognized as registered. If a student does not attend a course that she has registered for online, she will be given an F for this course. If a student attends a class other than the one she registered for, even if it has the same course number, she will be given an F for the course she registered for.

- F) If a student completes a major foundation course or a major course which was included in the curriculum prior to her entrance, but was later excluded from the curriculum due to reorganization of the curriculum, the course will not be recognized as a major foundation course or a major course. (This includes intensive major courses.)
- G) Important notes for registering to repeat courses.
- (1) It is possible to repeat courses with the same course number. Even if the course title changes, courses with the same course number are regarded as the same course.
 - (2) If a student completes a course according to an earlier version of the curriculum whose course number and title are subsequently changed, students may still repeat the course if it is a "compatible repeat course". See "view compatible repeat courses" in the course registration menu.
 - (3) Students must be careful not to register for "compatible repeat courses", mistaking them for different courses with separate credit recognition, because although their course numbers and titles are different, they will be recognized as the same course and processed as if the student were repeating one course.
 - (4) Students may only repeat a course if they originally got a grade lower than C+. The highest grade possible in a repeated course is A0(starting from 2026 Spring semester).
 - (5) Even if a student's grade for the repeated course is lower than that of the original grade, the grade for the repeated course will be the one that is counted.
 - (6) If registering to repeat a course, the year and semester of the original class will be listed in the "repeat" column.
- H) Students may not take a course their parents teach. Students should avoid the liberal arts and elective courses as much as possible, and choose another class of the required courses.

■ Method for the Completion of an Interdisciplinary Major

1) Restrictions on Registration for Interdisciplinary Majors

Although registration for most interdisciplinary majors is not restricted, restrictions do apply to the following majors. It is therefore recommended to check before registration.

Majors	Limitations
History of Art	-Restrictions on registration for a Double Major Registration is offered only to students whose GPA is 2.7 or higher

2) Limits on credits from courses offered by different majors (departments)

When minoring or double-majoring as part of an interdisciplinary major, students are not allowed to exceed the credit limit for each major (department) to prevent them from taking too many courses from one major. However, for some interdisciplinary majors separate limits are applied to the credits offered by different majors (departments).

A) Basic restrictions

Double Major	Minor
12 credits by major(department) offering courses	9 credits by major(department) offering courses

B) Separate restrictions

Interdisciplinary Major	Double Major	Minor
Child Development and Intervention	18 credits by Child Development and Intervention major	12 credits by Child Development and Intervention major
	12 credits from other departments (majors) offering courses	9 credits from other departments (majors) offering courses
Finance and Economics	15 credits by major (division of) Business Administration	-
	12 credits from other departments (majors) offering courses ※ There is no limit from 2024.
History of Art, , Japanese and Culture, Women’s Studies, North Korean Studies, Entrepreneurship, Software, Computational Medicine	No restrictions on credits from courses offered by the major (department) of the interdisciplinary major
	12 credits from other departments (majors) offering courses	9 credits from other departments (majors) offering courses
Moral Education, Integrated Social Studies, Integrated Science	No limit	-
Public Leadership & Justice	No limit

3) Designation of Additional Requirements for Completion

Some interdisciplinary majors have additional requirements for completion in addition to or separate from basic restrictions on credits for established majors (departments). Additional requirements include “minimum credits to complete from the courses of an established major (department),” “requisite courses,” “intensive courses,” and “minimum GPA required.” For more information, students can check out each major’s curriculum for the year they entered.

4) Recognition of overlapping credits

(Students who entered after 2012, ※ first major: main major)

If the courses for a student’s first major (major foundation, and major courses) and courses for their interdisciplinary subject are identical, up to nine credits from courses for the first major can be counted towards their interdisciplinary double major, and up to six credits can be counted towards their interdisciplinary minor.

Dual recognition of a specific course is limited to one time.

(However, credits from college basic courses can only be counted towards a double major. Moral Education, Integrated Social Studies and Integrated Science have separate regulations.)
